*Let the choral anthem rise!
Hail to Juniata!
Shout her glory to the skies;
Hail to Juniata!
Hail the newly risen star,
Shedding radiance from afar,
Pride of Pennsylvania,
Hail to Juniata!*

*'Mid the everlasting hills;
Hail to Juniata!
Bless'd with cool and shady hills;
Hail to Juniata!
Breathing pure and mountain air-
Fragrant flowers everywhere-
What wonder we can do and dare;
Hail to Juniata!*

*Let us then with loud acclaim;
Hail to Juniata!
Give honor to her spotless name;
Hail to Juniata!
Should e'er the laurel wreath be mine,
I'll lay the honor at thy shrine.
Our hearts, our hopes, our pray'rs are thine,
Hail to Juniata!*

...120 years

Through the decades changes have appeared on Juniata campus in many different forms.

—by Eileen Brubaker and Kelly Morton

During the 120 years of Juniata's existence, many things have changed. The one thing that has survived the times, however, is the purpose of educating the learning minds. This college started out as a teaching college but over the years has developed into a quality liberal arts institution. Students and faculty alike are proud of this community-oriented campus. The traditions at Juniata has helped foster the community feeling by giving students and alumni common bonds to share. These traditions remain forever in the minds of those who have experienced these events. But over 120 years, some changes did occur. A new mascot walked onto our athletic fields and courts while freshman hazing came to an end. Like the changing world, this campus too made the adjustments in hopes that incoming classes can make these events "survive the times," like the traditions we all loved and shared.

Cold Days!

During Madrigal Line, Estelle Kokales, Mike Streicker, Jen Spurrier, Matt Cutshall, Denny Hallinan, and Suzy Loy all hover under a blanket. The Madrigal traditions began with this line three nights prior to picking tables. This year, David De La Fuente was the DJ for the last night of Madrigal Line.

*When you hear
the word “traditions” what do you think of and why?*

“Extremely important, they are reminders of past, present, and hopefully future, they also serve as an uniting force”

—Bill Duey, College
Registrar

“I tend to think in specific events and the kind continuity it gives to current and future students. These events are accompanied by happy thoughts.”

—Joan Engle, Alumni 1972

“Traditions give you a sense of connection with the past. They make you feel part of the Juniata community.”

—Heather Kidder, sopho-

“This word makes me think of families and how close they can be. The atmosphere at Juniata resembles the tight, close knit of loving families.”

A Lasting Impression

Traditions! That is what life at Juniata is all about. The reason many students came here are for the traditional events that we have throughout the year. As a senior I saw old traditions brought back to life and I almost witnessed a tradition die. But through it all the traditions and their meanings have survived. With the re-opening of Cloister in 1994, brought back the naming of the freshman, courting of the dorms, and the true Vengeance Week. Also, Storming of the Arch was saved before it was killed off. Due to the hard work of two very dedicated Juniata students, Mike Strieker and Steve Van Mater, the freshman saw how things are really done at Juniata.

Traditions meant a lot us. With the threat of having Madrigal taken away from us, students made sure that it went smoothly. There wasn't a clink or crash of breaking glass, or any other outrageous behavior. So we were reassured that Madrigal will be here to stay.

Traditions gave us something to reminisce about. As the years go by you have major events that get you through the year. Twenty years down the road when you come back to Juniata, you will have something to talk to current students about. The meanings of Madrigal, Lobsterfest, Mountain Day, and the others will always be the same. The way they are celebrated may change but that is how traditions "survive the times."

LOBSTERFEST

Lobsterfest, one of the youngest traditions on campus, began in 1988. Sponsored by Center Board and Marriott food service, the event was a welcome for new and returning students, professors, administration, and alumni. Lobsterfest gave students the opportunity to talk with friends they haven't seen all summer, and it gave the new students a chance to meet people. It provided the students with a chance to find out where everyone was living and what classes they had in common.

Our eighth annual lobsterfest took place on North and Sherwood lawn during Labor day weekend with seven hundred and five students, faculty, and friends attending. More than 500 lobsters, 500 pieces of chicken, 200 steaks, 416 ears of corn, and 252 pounds of butter was consumed. The air was filled with the sounds of Katrina Coakley singing and Jeremy Santos playing the guitar. Katrina was the Campus Minister and a Residence Director; Jeremy was the bookstore manager. Besides enjoying the music, many students were occupied with playing a friendly game of frisbee. The day was filled with sunshine, laughter, and good food. Many students always looked forward to the arrival of the next Lobsterfest. Designed and he tradition of Parent's Weekend once again lived on this year. The weekend of October 6 was a beautiful sunny weekend jammed pack with a wide variety of sporting events, an artist series, and hypnotist, Thomas DeLuca. The theme for this year's Parent's Weekend was "Remembering the past and seeing the future." The weekend was meant to provide an opportunity for parents to take in all the added technology on campus and allow them to look toward their son or daughter's future.

The turn-out for the weekend was a little below normal, but that was most likely due to the home Penn State football game. The highlight of the weekend was the Parent's Appreciation Breakfast on Sunday morning with over 150 people in attendance. President Neff gave a warm speech about the direction Juniata is headed in, as well as discussing our rank among other liberal arts college.

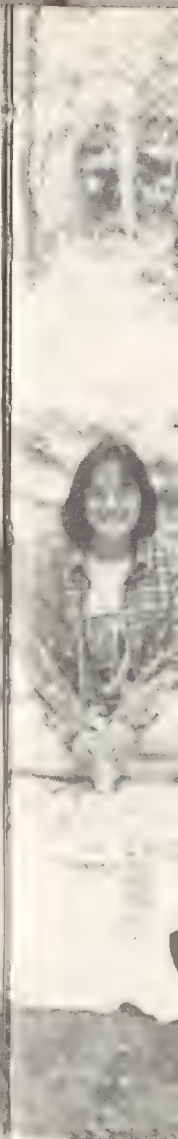

The event was carefully planned and the turn-out was wonderful. As always, a wonderful time was had by all. Overall, Parent's weekend 1995 was a huge success. Designed and produced by Kate Wollong eah! It's Mountain Day! Finally, the day that is highly anticipated by all Juniata students and faculty. Mountain Day was an afternoon of fun, food, and friends. It was a day where classes were spontaneously cancelled, and the student body, professors, and staff came together to enjoy the autumn season.

The 1995 Mountain Day was directed by Jen Wolfe, Christine Brenner, Nina Mathers, and Jon Bell. It was held at Trough Creek State Park, in a set-back grove that offered everything for a relaxing, leisurely day. At one quick glance, it was clearly visible that everyone was enjoying themselves. Physical plant workers engaged in an intense game of horseshoes, students played sand volleyball, flag-football, and everyone's favorite competition: tug-o'-war. Once again, the senior girls were the overall champions.

Historically, Mountain Day had a special purpose. After an outbreak of smallpox in the Huntingdon area after Christmas Break in 1877, the students and faculty scattered. Professor Brumbaugh directed some of the boys to "The Forge" in order to survive the times by escaping the smallpox epidemic. Today, this destination is known as Trough Creek State Park. The boys returned every year, and then they began changing their location to other parks. On Thursday, October 22, 1903, Henry Brumbaugh coined the phrase, "Mountain Day" for this all-college day outing. The tradition of Mountain Day lived on. It was an event that allowed us to enjoy the natural beauties of central Pennsylvania, and all that our surroundings offered to us.

Next year, when the magic phrase, "It's Mountain Day!" is heard ringing across campus, keep in mind the true concept of Mountain Day and how the students in 1877 used it to survive the times. Designed and produced by Kate Wolling.

he Homecoming theme of this particular year was "Generations." The weekend was packed with sports, class, and alumni events. Our football team was victorious over Susquehanna. Women's Volleyball, Field Hockey, and Men's Soccer participated in Alumni games or Tournaments. The classes rivaled in banner, lip sync, and scavenger hunt contests throughout the week. The scavenger hunt and banner competition was taken by the Seniors and the lip sync title was earned by the Junior class. Overall, the Senior class took the most points and won the two-hundred dollar award for their class account.

Alumni filled the campus and attended luncheons, reunions, and a picnic at Detweiler Plaza. Cloister was dedicated by Dr. Robert Neff and H.B. Brumbaugh was honored for his commitment to Juniata. The band "Whiskers and Lace" entertained the crowd for dinner on the lawn. To end the weekend activities for the students, the Homecoming dance was held in Baker Refectory. The theme, "Old Movies," was brought to life with popcorn, the Hollywood Walk of Fame, and theater candy. STORMING

by:
Steven M.
Van Mater

Storming of the Arch was a long standing tradition held by the students of Juniata College. The roots of this tradition dated back many decades to a time when freshmen were not allowed to walk through the Cloister arch. This was a right exclusively reserved for the upperclass students. At some point, one freshman decided to charge the arch and try his chances against the upperclassmen. He did not succeed and to this day no freshman student has ever gotten through the arch. Since that fateful day, Storming became one of the favorite traditions held by The Cloister. The second Wednesday of the fall semester at 6:30 p.m. is the designated day that freshman storm the arch and the upperclassmen defend it. After many years the real tradition became lost in the shuffle and began to take on negative connotations until it was eventually outlawed.

In 1995 two officers of the Juniata River Men's Rugby Club, Steven Van Mater and Michael Streicker, were determined to not only legalize Storming of the Arch, but create a positive campus wide event different from all others. After writing many proposals and attending a number of meeting, these two students spearheaded the effort to legalize the event and then proceeded to organize it as a charity event with all proceeds donated to the Huntingdon Area Habitat for Humanity. On Tuesday, September 19, 1995 at 6:30 p.m. Storming of the Arch took place with almost 200 Juniata students protected the hallowed Cloister steps. No one got through the arch and a good time was had by all that participated and attended the event. All it took was administration, faculty, and a couple of students working together and the tradition was alive on the Juniata College campus once again. Designed and produced by Kate Wolling.

MADRIGAL

On December 9, 1995, the lights of "Tinsel Town" shined brightly throughout Ellis Hall for the 25th annual Madrigal Dinner/Dance. As students entered the lobby of Ellis, they were greeted by a blanket of white in "A White Christmas." Progressing through the throng of people at Macy's, guests were in for a special treat - a chance to chat with Kris Kringle (our own Dr. Neff) who was taking time off from "A Miracle on 34th Street" to be with us.

Students dining upstairs in Muddy Run Cafe were taken back to the time of Ebenezer Scrooge and "A Christmas Carol." Once all the students had passed through Macy's and entered "It's a Wonderful Life," they had the chance to mingle with the faculty and administrative members that they had chosen to serve them dinner.

Finally, it was time to begin. Co-chairs, Julie Elvey, Dana Hess, and Stacey McMath greeted the guests, then asked the presidents of each class to approach the stage for the traditional wassail toasts. Each president took the opportunity to pass some of their knowledge on to the other classes. Upon their conclusion, student minister Sia Baryoh gave the blessing for the meal, and it was time to eat. Immediately following dinner, a group of singers, led by the Provost Dr. Hatala and Deb Turner, provided guests with a short selection of Christmas melodies, ending with the students' favorite part of the evening - Christmas Carols! Some of the selections included "Jingle Bells," "Rudolph," "Frosty the Snowman," and perennial favorites "Silent Night" and "The Twelve Days of Christmas."

Three hours later the students returned to Baker for the dance where they were treated to music spanning the past five decades. Overall, the 25th Annual Madrigal Dinner/Dance was a great success! With more than 760 students and 80 faculty/administrative servers attending, both of these numbers eclipsed the attendance numbers of the past several years. The co-chairs wish to extend their thanks and appreciation to all those who made this Madrigal such a memorable one!

Was it Tony in the Blue Room with an Equipment Bag? Or was it the Indian's come back for their final revenge? This year's who-dun-it theme for All Class Night produced a variety of plots ranging from the disappearance of the Provost to a sinister plot in the science lab!

The winners, the Class of '97, gave the audience a "Clue" to the series of mishaps occurring on the Juniata College campus. The whole cast of characters each had their motive. Some said it was Tony in the Blue room with an equipment bag, while others contended it was Mary the Food Service Lady. It all came out in the end as the audience found out it was Coach Berrier who was knocking off people because Investigator Coach Bock stole his job.

Ever hear of the substance called Liquid Paranoia? This substance earned Second place for the Class of '99, for their classic Holmes mystery. Dean Holmes, along with super sleuth DJ Hoffman were investigating the case of the Missing Cloister Oriental Rug when they happened upon a deeper plot by Dr. Fisher. Twenty years ago this man created Liquid Paranoia to make perfect students who followed directions and listened to authority. Now, with the help of Scooby Doo and Shaggy, the mystery of the rug is solved and the Liquid Paranoia plot was "foiled again by those meddling kids!"

Third place went to the Class of '96, who brought back old TV favorites like Charlies Angels and the A-Team to solve the mysterious disappearance of Provost Hatala. Although all the staff and faculty in attendance at the President's Post-Madrigal party, as well as some students who had motive to "off" the Provost, in the end it was his son Duncan who committed the crime.

Finally, the Class of '98, worked a Classic Western story into the theme, complete with Cowboys and Indians. In western style, the sophomores engaged the audience in a showdown between the traditional Indian mascot and the new Eagle. The Indians kidnapped the Eagle, followed by a battle that ended in the triumph of the Eagle mascot who fed the Indians poisoned chicken from Baker Refectory. By far the crowd stopper was the faculty and staff's rendition of the Blues Brothers "Glad You Could Make It" and "Gimme Some Lovin." They performed with a band, lead singers Andy Murray, James Lakso, and Jack Linetty along with backup singers Grace Fala, Katrina Coakley, Jenelle Patton, and Linda Price. The show concluded with guest appearances by several other staff and faculty members driving the standing-room-only crowd to their feet.

A special performance by the faculty was found to be the highlight of the evening with a Blues Brothers performance.

he Tenth Annual Presidential Ball was held on Saturday, March 30, 1996. In a new twist this year, the location was off-campus at the Huntingdon Elks Lodge. The theme was "Swing Into Spring" and the Elks Lodge was decorated in a red, white, and black color scheme that featured huge columns, hundreds of balloons, and cut-outs of dancers and musical instruments.

Many students took advantage of the opportunity to arrive in style by showing up at the Lodge in a limousine or Juniata van, transportation offered by the school. Guests were greeted at the door by President and Mrs. Neff. The menu consisted of a variety of hot and cold appetizers.

Music during the first part of the evening was provided by the Fred Shannon Smith Orchestra, which delighted the crowd with a variety of big band tunes. Many students tested their newly acquired ballroom dancing skills which they had learned through free lessons offered by the Continuing Education program. After the orchestra finished playing, Local-Motion DJs took over to finish out the special night with the latest favorites and requests of the crowd.

with a mud volleyball tournament. After cleaning up a bit, everyone attended the Hawaiian luau theme dance, and got a free lei at the door.

The chilly weather Saturday morning forced the day's activities into the Kennedy Sports and Recreation gym, but it did not dampen JC students' spirits. Various clubs and sports sponsored a variety of booths including: a pie throwing contest, temporary tattoos, raffles, candy sales, rummage sales, face painting, hair wrapping, and more! Students also took part in activities like human foosball, and bounce boxing, and making spin art frisbees and photo buttons.

As people played, ate, and visited, the bands Jealous Sun and Angry Salad provided live music for everyone to enjoy. Then, as dinner was served, the Dirges entertained the crowd.

To cap off the day, the movie Ace Ventura: When Nature Calls was shown in Alumni Hall. Students shared a lot of laughs, made numerous memories, and appreciated the chance to goof around before starting finals. Designed and

COMMENCEMENT

Anxiously waiting to receive his diploma, Jason Youngblood thinks about his experiences at Juniata over the last four years.

While the Commencement exercises continue, members of the Class of 1996 listen attentively to the speakers.

n the afternoon of May 12, 1996, Mother's Day, over 220 students graduated from Juniata College before a standing-room-only auditorium of family and friends.

This year's Commencement Ceremonies began with the singing of The National Anthem led by David Christopher and remarks from Class President Julie Elvey. Special honorary degrees were awarded to two prominent persons during this Ceremony. Mr. Chumpol Phornaprapha received his Doctor of Education degree, while Commencement Speaker Mr. Paul Winter gained the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters.

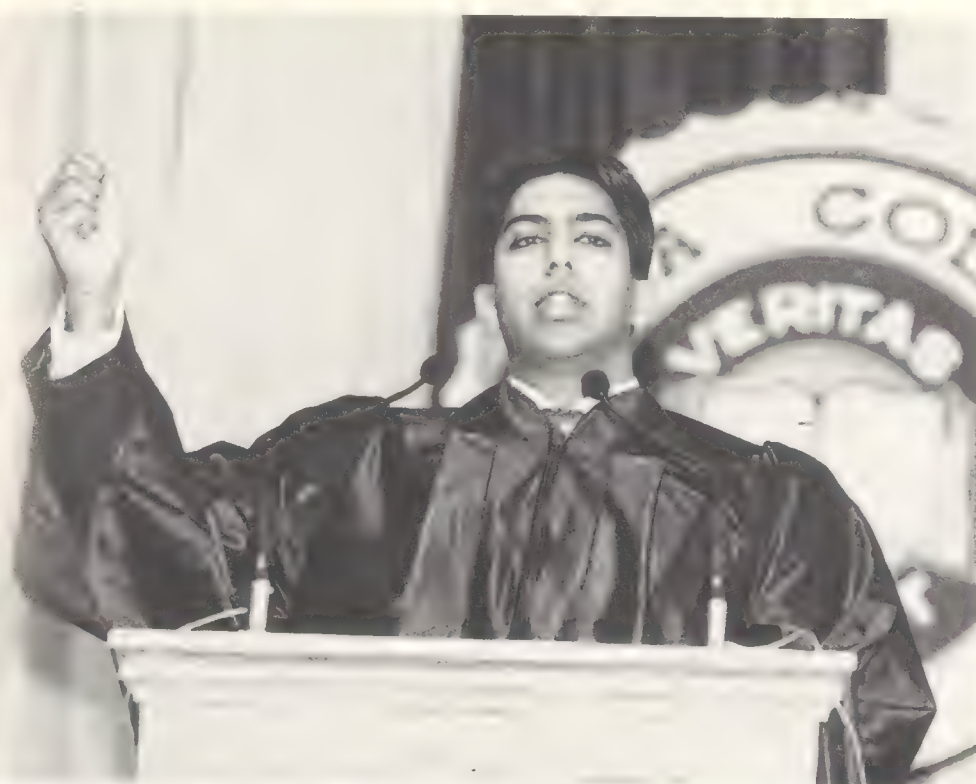

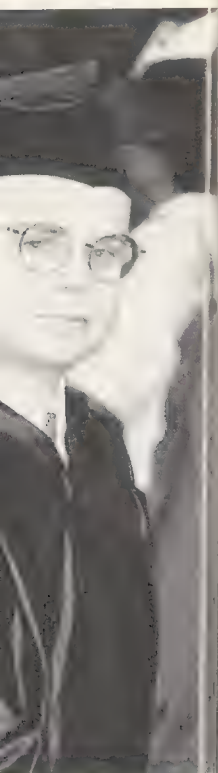

During his Commencement Address, Winter not only spoke to the graduates about their future, but inspired them through playing his clarinet to the background noise of nature's animals. The previous evening, Winter gave a concert in Oller Hall demonstrating his remarkable musical talent for all to enjoy.

Prior to the Commencement Ceremony, a Baccalaureate Service was held in the gymnasium. Graduates Nancy LeTard, Aaron Blanchard, David Christopher, Renee Wildermuth, Cynthia Anderson, Sia Baryoh, and Melissa Rosario all assisted in this worship worship.

By late afternoon, families and friends were celebrating the success and accomplishments of these Juniata Alumni. Congratulations to the class of 1996. We wish you success and happiness in all you do.

Although most things have "survived the times," like all sporting events, the end result is never predetermined. by Co-Editor Kelly Morton.

Survival of the fittest

When we think of our school, the traditions and special events usually come to mind. Why? Most likely because these occasions have "survived the times." For years, our school celebrated Madrigal, All Class Night, and Lip Sync, just to name a few. It is these traditions that make our school unique.

However, not all things "survived the times." The athletic department, for example underwent some major changes this year. At the conclusion of the 1995 school year, a heated debate occurred between the administration, athletic department, and the students. "Title Nine" was forced into effect. This "law" stated that there must be an equal amount of male and female participants in the athletic program.

Therefore, many of the male teams had to be eliminated. The result was the loss of five sports teams. These included golf, men's swimming, wrestling, men's cross country, and men's tennis.

It is evident, unfortunately, that not all aspects of our college survived. No longer did the brave Indian mascot run around our football field, or get the crowd psyched for a basketball game. Along with our changing country, values, and politically correct ways, we adopted a new symbol. While five sports teams were slowly forgotten, a soaring eagle entered our stadium and courts. With his fierce look and energetic personality, this mascot began a new tradition, something that will "survive the times" forever. Designed and

Fighting Eagles

First-year head coach Tom Gibboney lead a determined team this year that showed everyone that they were not a team to be taken for granted. The 2-7-1 team tied with Moravian and won against FDU-Madison and Susquahanna. The later victory mentioned also brought the Goal Post Trophy back to Juniata. This improving team proved itself even more so by the numerous titles awarded to both offensive and defensive players. Falvo, Zaring, and Zuch recieved 1st Team honors in the MAC Commonwealth League; Rivello, Cavanaugh, Sweitzer, and Schreier recieved 2nd Team honors. Zaring and Molinaro were named Players of the Week during the season and Schreier was named defensive MVP at the Pretzel Bowl. Zuch, Devlin, Long, and Sweitzer were also named Academic All-Stars this season. The Eagles look forward to an even better season next fall.

Soaring Eagles

Coached for the first time by Amelia Fort, the Juniata Eagles Women's soccer team was led by captains Julie Detweiler and Jocelyn Hochman. The leading scorers were juniors Karen Johnson and Beth Bleil with two goals each. Hochman and Johnson were also recognized as Academic All-Stars.

After a tough season, the team marked an 0-11-1 record overall and a Commonwealth League record of 0-4. Coach Fort expressed the team's feelings concerning its statistics, remarking,

"I think that the group learned that there was more to success than the numerical score at the end of the game." She pointed to the team's enthusiasm, closeness, and desire to work for each other as reasons for claiming the 1996 season as a success. The team has good reason for high expectations for the future. Skills levels improve as the team continued to make the transition from club to varsity sport. Continued support from the college community creates excitement as the team looks to the third season. Written by Jen Ungemach, produced by Tina Williamson

Swish Went The Net

First year coach, Amy Fort, led the Lady Eagles to a 4-18 season. The ladies came back and won some miraculous overtime wins and showed everyone they had what it takes. The team was very consistant at the free throw line all year and the second half proved to be the better scoring half for the Eagles. Mandy Pile, a sophomore, was named to the MAC All-Star Team and Kerry Stefanko led the MAC in the three point goal average. Fort and the returning members look forward to next season.

"This was a season that someone could write a good book about. If we only focus on the number of wins we took away from this season, then we are looking at the wrong things. This team improved and bounced back from adversity as they faced a new coach, a new system, and career ending injury in a senior captain. But the bottom line is that we stayed together because we wanted to be in the position to win ball games. A winning tradition is contagious and we look to spread it all over campus"

The women's swim team saw a year of great changes...without a men's team to practice and compete with and a new coach stepping in to train these women. Of the eight swimmers who made up the roster, five were freshman! Coupled with the efforts of first-year coach Greg Scallen, the Lady Eagles finished off the year with some great performances at MAC's, lead by sophomore Kirsten Kenyon's third place finish in the 100 back, fourth place finish in the 200 back, and freshmen Erin Hallinan's fourth place finish in the 100 free. Other top 12

Eagle finishers included Senior Captain Jen Dein and freshman Krista Hronakes in the 100 and 200 breast. Freshmen Erin Long added a powerful fly and free leg to the medley and 200 free relays, while junior Heather English and freshman Andrea Steward joined Hronakes and Dein in the final event, the 400 free relay. Jen Evans, who was unable to attend MAC's had none the less qualified in the 200 and 100 back, in her first year ever of swimming. All in all, the year gave the young team experience and a hopeful outlook for next fall. By Kirsten Kenyon.

Memories Forever

Graduation! The one thing that seniors anxiously looked forward to. Walking across the platform to receive a diploma, proved that you survived the hard classes, the stress attacks and Senior Week. This is the one thing that you waited for your entire life. Now you have to find another goal to strive for, whether it be obtaining your Masters or finding a "real" job.

Many looked at their senior year as the last time to experience diverse JC traditions, such as their last Madrigal and last Mountain day. There won't be a boss anywhere who will declare Mountain day. Even though these were the last chances we had to experience Juniata's traditions, we will relive these experiences by looking through our photo albums and yearbooks.

Over our four years here, we went from clueless freshman to the ones that the clueless freshman looked to for help. We went from being called 'JC' or the 'Big Blue' to the 'Juniata Eagles.' This was a very special moment for us. For our first two years there wasn't an official mascot.

We experienced the best of both worlds: the lovely hall phone experience and the new modern technology voice mail. Instead of getting junk in our 'snail mailboxes' we made it disappear into cyberspace. Finally cable was installed in every room so we could distract ourselves by watching Thursday night TV.

We collected many memories of life at good ole JC. We have crazy and wild stories to share with others ten years down the road at our reunions. These memories will "survive a lifetime."

Remember When..

Remember the first day of the first year of the first time in your life you started your journey to getting old...

Remember the roommates, the fears, the tears, the nerves, setting up the room, taking it apart and then rearranging it all over again...

Remember attempting to keep in touch with high school friends, and succeeding until you realized what a phone bill REALLY meant...

Remember promising to never change, but then realizing that's an impossible promise to keep when high school has passed and you've moved on...

Remember those neighbors and classmates, who ended up becoming your closest friends...

Remember holding back the tears on those days when you just wanted to be home again, to feel safe again...

Remember those days you felt you couldn't relate to ANYONE, you felt you had no place, and just calling home would make it worse...

Remember those bonding nights, when you never felt closer to a certain person, and how that closeness creates ties that never die...

Remember how you never realized the importance of family, until you didn't see them everyday...

Remember telling friends the deepest secrets of your life, and knowing they'd remain secrets...

Remember pulling all nighters, and never thinking they were as bad as they sounded until you actually lived through one...

Remember those nights you were so drunk you held conversations with strangers and then saw them the next day and remembering...

Remember hangovers, and promising yourself you were never going to do this to yourself again...

Remember how quickly that promise was broken...

Remember when your closet stretched throughout the whole floor and you never had to worry about a lack of clothes anymore...

Remember thinking HOW MUCH your life has changed in just months...

Remember to never lose touch with those friends you've made here at college, because you have all changed and grown enormously together and that is something very sacred to be shared...

Remember to love your friends, whether they come, go, love you or hurt you, never let anyone go...

Remember you are only here for a short while, the time flies before you realize it, so make it last, make it memorable, make it the best time of your life, and make the best memories that you can carry with you for the rest of your days...

Remember this doesn't last forever so never let a day go by without living it to the fullest..

Remember the laughs, let them echo in the back of your mind...

And always remember, when you leave here you are leaving with much more than you walked in here with.

President's Message

Dear Members of the Class of 1996

Your class has chosen the theme for the yearbook - "Surviving the Times." As a class you have demonstrated a capacity to do just this in four different ways: hold to tradition; foster international contacts and awareness; adapt new technologies; and commit to the maturation of the mind.

You have fought to maintain the traditions of the College such as "Storing the Arch" and have enhanced other by the redefinition of "The May Day Breakfast" and "The Homecoming Court." For the first time, we celebrated non-Judeo-Christian events of campus including the Post-Ramadan Feast of Eid and the African-American Festival of Kwanza.

Ten years ago, five different countries were represented on Juniata's campus. This semester there are students from thirty-two countries, about eight percent of our student body. You have been involved in the first United Nations Seminar of Disarmament, the only one of its kind in the world. You have participated in international exchange in ever increasing numbers. You are a generation sensitized to the international context of your life.

This year you and I have witnessed the technological transformation of this campus. You are far ahead of the administration on this one. A new phone system, e-mail and the internet, video and audio options in residence hall rooms, distance learning, world wide web pages became a part of our life. A technology fee demonstrates that technology is as important as room and board in the way we live. You are well prepared for a world of professional and international networks.

You are serious students. I often share with colleagues and my wife, Dottie, that you are more diligent in your study than we were. I know that trustees and alumni enjoy conversing with you because you are informed and have a fresh (sometimes cynical) outlook on the world.

As you graduate, you have a firm hold on the past by your love of tradition, a grip on the future by your use of technology, and an anchor in the present by your tough mindedness and international awareness. I believe you will not only survive the times, but actually change and direct the future. My best wishes as you tackle not only survival, but transformation of our society and our world.

Departure - Rebecca Nelson

This place belongs to them now
To the people after us
Following the paths we have made.
But, I remember the beginning,
Watching the faces pass,
Wondering the names.
Now, there are so many different faces
That before I have even left,
I have given this place, this school,
To them.
It is only the buildings that
Look the same, the way they did
At the start.
The classrooms don't change,
The bricks on the outside of the buildings
Stay the same.

It is only what is inside that
Is different now.
New faces
New hands
New smiles
Inside those buildings
So here
Take this place
I give it to you.
Wander the walks that I have wandered
Sit in the chairs where I have run.
But before I go,
Let me look back just one more time:
The sun is going down, gold, behind the hills.
A train is roaring in the distance.
And I am waving goodbye
To the part of myself
I am leaving here.

Dedicated

The chance to pursue a dream that many strive for. Many people, pursuing this dream, often find themselves in the middle of the road and they are rewarded with respect for their efforts and to go unnoticed.

One person truly lived his dream of helping others. His difference was John Smith. His community was touched by his presence. His words brightened the lives of students, faculty and staff. We will remember John's will to solve a problem, be it academic or personal. In spite of any prior commitments, he was always willing to help others if he could. Not only did he share his time, but he shared his abilities with others to accomplish their dreams.

An Emergency Manager with Huntingdon and voted his free time to help those that were in need. John had a passion that grew well beyond personal interests. His life was based on the desire to help someone in need, even if it meant his own well-being in jeopardy. He wanted to give others the gift of life.

Dedication

The chance to positively affect others is a dream that many people share and strive for. Many people succeed in attaining this dream despite unfavorable odds and they are remembered with love and respect for their efforts that at times seem to go unnoticed.

One person truly devoted to this dream of helping others and making a difference was John Shuster. The Juniata community was touched by the friend it had in John. His constant smile and kind words brightened the lives of the students, faculty and staff. Fellow students remember John's willingness to help with a problem, be it academic or other, despite any prior commitments; John was always willing to help another in any way he could. Not only did he sacrifice his time, but he shared his knowledge and his abilities with others to encourage them to accomplish their dreams.

An Emergency Medical Technician with Huntingdon ambulance, John devoted his free time to provide assistance to those that were in desperate need of help. John had a passion for his work that grew well beyond personal interests and was based on the desire to do all that he could for someone in need. He placed his own well-being in jeopardy many times to give others the gift of life, his efforts many times going unrewarded or unnoticed. The families that were touched by John's helping hand will not forget the difference that was made in their lives by a person who did not have to have any obligation to help, yet did.

In a world that can seem overwhelming to an individual, John is proof that one person can have a positive effect on the lives of many others. His life gives hope that we too can help better our world by simply making an effort and being devoted to our dreams. Juniata College will always remember the difference that John made in the lives of so many people and would like to dedicate this book to student and friend, John Brian Shuster.

After years of service to Juniata and hundreds of students, it is time say goodbye to some of our finest faculty members. by Co-Editor Kelly Morton

Dedication for those retiring

Bernice Heller

Associate Professor of Spanish. Her special academic interests included medieval Spanish literature and Spanish American theater. 1955-1996

Our campus thrived on students, organizations, and traditional events. However, without the professors and faculty at this school, Juniata would never have existed.

The staff was the foundation of this college. Their knowledge, expertise, and guidance directed all of the students toward their future endeavors. Student services, such as the security office, dining facilities, and our post office were all run by enthusiastic faculty members.

Many professors taught at Juniata for numerous years. They saw this college grow and develop along with the passing semesters. For four such retiring professors, we dedicated this book. They have, in essence, "survived the times."

Thank you to Professors Max Heller, Bernice Heller, Robert Fisher, and William Hofelt for your dedication to Juniata and your students throughout their years. Your hard work and success has not been overlooked. Thank you once again. Designed and produced by Kelly Morton.

WOW!

Friends Abby Wiley and Jennifer... Throughout the year, close friendships between classmates and dormmates are formed, creating memories and relationships that made the year pass by so quickly.

Although classes and studying was the center of college life, creating lasting friendships was a large part of our everyday lives. by Co-Editor Kelly Morton

Creating a unity

Throughout the year, students were involved in numerous activities, working hard for credits, and surviving the endless reading and writing assignments given to them day in and day out. However, among our busy lifestyles, we always found time for socializing!

Whether it be in our dorms or at dinner, students came together to relieve stress. Weekends were designed for partying, trips, sleeping in, and lying around one's room with friends.

Close friendships were formed by living with classmates throughout an entire year. In a dorm, or in East, Mission, or Pink apartments, students joined together to help each other survive the year. During Vengeance Week, for example, The Cloister residents all came together for an all-campus water battle. Also,

North dorm constantly held coffee houses for students to display their talents and interests. Tussey and South were popular for their Saturday night dances that attracted a large majority of students looking for a place to hang out.

Students living with and amongst each other has always been a custom at Juniata. This dorm lifestyle, like the traditional events and strong faculty, has also "survived the times."

As a chemistry class, graduating class, or East Tower forever students created unities through friendships. Designed and produced by Kelly Morton.

Students Take to the Soapbox...

Designed and Produced by Jennifer Ungemach and Cynthia Anderson

A treat for the ear...

Halloween provides a cauldron of treats for both the eye and ear. On October 31, 1995, members of the student body voluntarily shared stories and poems commemorating the holiday of ghouls and goblins. The annual Soap Box Speeches, held on Detwiler Plaza, told tales of murder, mystery, and the peculiarities of life. The performances ranged from a spine-tingling reading of Edgar Allen Poe's horrifying story of The Telltale Heart by Rose Regan, to an original theatrical poem by Jessica Wheeler. The tales spun accentuated the atmosphere of both the holiday and the event.

Every year since 1993, the Soap Box Speeches have provided a platform for students to display their talents, not only in the genre of speech, but through poetry and song as well. For those who had a profound statement to declare, a prophetic monologue to preach, or a creative narrative to recite, the Soap Box Speeches provided an excellent opportunity to do so. Focusing their ideas on a chosen topic, "Halloween" for 1995, students allowed their creativity to flow.

Jeffrey Kauffman, Garwood Reynolds, and Scott Whitehair show the Jekyll side of their personalities.

For Juniata students, Halloween does not end with childhood. Some students took advantage of the community's spirit to continue the tradition of trick or treating. Juniata students decorated their halls and handed out treats. Leshar offered free hot apple cider to all, while North and Sherwood had treats for everyone. Sherwood also sponsored a hall decorating contest with third floor claiming first prize.

The Cloister, following tradition, transformed the wing into a haunted house for daring individuals. The theme this year was a murder mystery, in which an axe murderer escaped from the Huntingdon State Penitentiary and was last seen lurking around the Cloister.

Through her speech connecting science and the need for community, Pervi Shah captured a second place prize in this years contest.

For the Juniata community who had a love and appreciation for public speaking, this year's Bailey Oratorical Speech Contest was a treat. Participation in this annual event was high with twenty-two students, eager to share their thoughts on "whether or not community matters for building a sustainable future."

The speeches showed a wide variety of thoughts, in which many of the speakers incorporated personal background and experiences. The judges picked Julie Costa, Mali Kambandu, JoAnn Kester, Jessie Oldham, Purvi Shah and Brandee Shope to continue to the final round held February 19.

Each speaker, in her own way captured the attention of the audience making the night a resounding success. As winners of the Bailey, Jessie Oldham walked away with $100, Purvi Shah and Brandee Shope with $200 each and JoAnn Kester with $500.

SHERWOOD HALL

As members of organizations that worked year-round for the student body, the Alfarata, Juniatian, and Radio Station all came together on Reading Day to celebrate their hard work and dedication at a Communication Banquet.

After a year of capturing memories, creating a monthly newspaper, and keeping the tunes rolling over the airwaves, a Communication Banquet was much deserved for the Alfarata staff, Juniatian staff, and WKVR radio station.

Chairperson for this year's banquet, Shelly Brown began the evening by making a few opening remarks concerning the nature and history of the organizations present. After these remarks, hungry group members enjoyed a catered dinner by Marriott.

Concluding the Banquet, each head of these clubs gave a brief speech and words of thanks to their staffs. The Alfarata and Juniatian clubs gave out small gifts for each of their members. Advisor for these two groups, Professor Donna Weimer was also recognized for her contribution and guidance during the year. With a crowd of over 20 members, this year's Communication Banquet was successful and enjoyable for all that attended.

Year after year, clubs continue to entertain the student body with activities, trips, and dances. by: Co-Editor Kelly Morton

Still Going Strong

There were many things about our school that made it unique, the people, traditions, and location just to name a few. But how many other colleges of our size did you know that offered the diversity and number of student-run organizations? From the Chemistry Club to the Juniatian, there was a niche for everyone's interests.

Throughout the year, these organizations provided the student body with dances, comedians, and tons of promotional T-shirts. Every week, there always seemed to be another group sitting outside Baker doing a fund-raiser of some sort. After obtaining an efficient budget, organizations would take field trips, bring in guest speakers, or have an occasional pizza party.

Many of our close friendships were formed while engaging in club activities. As a group, we bonded together with similar interests, striving to reach a common goal. Weekly or biweekly meetings gave us a chance to escape our studies and be with our companions.

Each year, new clubs always emerged on campus. This rich student involvement never ceased to bring something new to our campus and continued with yearly events we loved. Like our athletics, traditions, and fascinating student body which all "survived the times," the same can be said about our organizations. Designed and produced by Kelly Morton.

ALFARATA JUNIATIAN

As the year quickly passed, this years Alfarata Staff busied themselves by capturing all the spectacular events that occurred at Juniata. Our photographers were always seen taking pictures to include in this year's book "Surviving the Times." After many grueling hours of meetings and work days, the staff completed this book, dedicated to the four retiring teachers, John Shuster, and Juniata's 120th Anniversary. This year we tried to include more photographs of students on campus and also more stories to help us all remember the "good ol' days" when we are old and retired. To all who contributed to "Surviving the Times" we can't thank you enough. By The Alfarata Staff.

This year was a definite learning experience for the editors and staff of the Juniatian newspaper. Working towards a higher quality newspaper, with interesting, well-written articles and a full editorial staff was no easy task. And with a new publisher and increased advertising, the difference in organization took some getting used to. But the staff not only survived, they seceded, even considering the daunting task of learning how to use the newspaper's brand new computer equipment and publishing software. GATHERING A CROWD

During SHAC's brew week, EMS Club assisted in dramatizing a mock accident. A helicopter from Med-Star landed on the baseball field and attracted a large audience.

EMG. CLUB COMPUTER

The Emergency Services Club was founded this year in memory of John Shuster, a devoted EMT who truly believed in helping others. The club's goal was to provide education and awareness of emergency situations to the college community. The club's membership consisted of approximately 20 students who were EMTs, First Responders, Firefighters, or interested in emergency services and promoting safety on campus. This year the club provided a mock accident for BREW week and also held a CPR class for the college community in the fall. In the spring, the club provided a Pennsylvania First Responders class. This club hoped to continue to provide education to students to promote safety on campus. By Becky Marsh.

The Juniata College Computer Society was a student-run organization that was open to all Juniata students, regardless of P.O.E. or computer proficiency. The objective of the Computer Society was to provide a means and setting for students with interests in computers, at whatever level, to discuss and learn about computer-related topics, to encourage discussion, provide opportunities for interaction between Math and Computer Science/Programming students and faculty members, and to arrange special opportunities for members to gain firsthand experience and knowledge about various computer fields and areas. The Computer Society stood out as a club that did more than plan events just for its own members. The majority of their traditional activities were open to the student body. They judged the success of their events by the amount of participation that they got outside of their own membership. The members had a reputation of being very active in club meetings and planning. CENTER BOARD

STUDENT GOV'T

Centerboard was once again very active in social activities this year. Club JC brought some excellent bands to campus while Friday Nite Live sponsored comedians and even a ventriloquist. The Getaway committee hosted trips to New York City, Baltimore, and Washington D.C. Films this year ranged from "Apollo 13" to "Seven." The club was very excited about Springfest where the theme was a Hawaiian Luau. May Day was another exciting activity for Centerboard. For the first time, men were invited to this breakfast designed to honor Senior women and their achievements. By Matt Tomasheski.

This year Student Government worked toward improving itself. They reconstructed their organization with the hope of better representing student interests and funding student organizations. In changing the structure, they tried to give each member more responsibilities. Instead of many cluttered committees and concerning themselves with areas of the campus that were more effectively addressed by other organizations, they shrank the organization to just three committees: a Social committee, an Academic and Government committee, and a Budget and Management committee. With these committees, yearly projects like charity events or leadership developments involved more people. Each representative was also responsible to oversee the workings of a few student organizations. These individuals communicated any changes other clubs made that would effect their business and insured that the organization remained active and spent their money wisely. Their goal this year was to begin to establish a more productive and engaged Student Government. By Bill Rys. Designed and produced by Clint Fetrow.

UNITED COLORS

The purpose of the International Club was to allow the International students the opportunity to interact and learn about each other's cultures. The club looked to set up activities that promoted the purpose of the organization, including trips, celebrations, lectures, and films. This year, the club had an overnight trip to Williamsburg Mansion and to Patrick Lodge for Halloween, and trips to Belleville and Gettysburg. Also, the International Club hosted a coffeehouse, dance, and table at Parent's Weekend and Springfest. Finally, ice skating and a special International dinner was part of the club's activities for this year. By Corrinne Joseph.

This was the first year for United Cultures of JC, which was formerly called the African-American Student Organization. This club decided to change its name due to the diversity of the club. Their purpose was to bring cultural awareness to students. One was through food. This club sponsored three major dinners this year. They celebrated Kwanza which was the African-American celebration of life. The second dinner was Eid, which was celebrated by Hindus. Eid was the celebration of Ramandon ending. Ramandon was fasting for one month. The third dinner was a Trinidad and Taboga dinner to celebrate Power 92 - no dogs, no frogs, just good music! By Cory Lowe.

The Communication (please note there is no "s!") Club was created in the Fall of 1994 to provide both a space for group interaction between those who have a strong interest in the field of communication, and a forum for discussion about relevant internships, career options, etc. Over the past two years, this club held resume writing and interviewing workshops which were open to all Juniata students. They also helped raise money for Huntingdon House, a local women's shelter, were in the process of refurbishing the bulletin boards in Ellis for easier student use. In the future, this club hopes to be affiliated with the National Speech Communication Association and create an honor society for those students who excel in communication. WARMING UP

Mark Himelfarb warms up for the 1995 Christmas Concert.

CHOIR WIND SYM- PHONY

Every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at noon, the sounds of choral music could be heard from Oller Hall. It was there, under the direction of Professor Russell Shelley, the blood and sweat of the Concert Choir combined to create the music performed on travelling tours and compact disc recordings. Each spring the Choir conducted a spring tour followed by a Homecoming Concert hosted by the President. On the 1996 Boston Tour, the Choir performed at Smethport, PA, Syracuse, NY, Geneva, NY, New Haven, CT, Stamford, CT and finally Lansdale, PA. The Concert Choir also performed for an audience of alumni and friends at the 100th Anniversary of the First Church of the Brethren in Harrisburg as part of their year-long celebration. The music program contained songs both accompanied and a cappella, ranging from uplifting spirituals to dissonant modern works. From its humble beginnings as a fight-song singing men's chorus to its present day classical program for mixed voices, the Concert Choir continued as a long-standing Juniata tradition. By Pam Naudascher.

Under the musical guidance of new director Diane Bargiel, the 1995-96 Wind Symphony performed three concerts containing a variety of music from Jay Chattaway's "Mazama" to J.S. Bach "Jesu, Joy of Plan's Desiring." With approximately 30 members, the Wind Symphony attempted to create an appreciation of communication through music and preforming ensembles; Juniata College hosted its first High School Honor Band. This event allowed the best instrumental players from around the New England area to join in the performance with the Wind Symphony. This special event was caught on recordings to be remembered for future years. By Kate Wolling. Designed and produced by Clint Fetrov.

YOUNG RE-PUBLICANS

KVASIR

The Peace and Conflict Studies Organization was a group of students involved or interested in the PACs Program. This diverse group sought to explore social issues outside of the classroom. This unique club began in 1995 to create new opportunities for students. Activities this year included: working for the UN International Arm Control, a Disarmament Seminar, a community-building picnic at the Peace Chapel, and attending the Peace Studies Association Conference in Richmond, Indiana. By Jennifer Ungemach.

The Young Republicans Club, founded in 1994, was headed this year by Krista Templeton (President), Wayne Langerholc (Vice-President), Julie Elvey (Secretary), Jen Johnson (Treasurer) and Kim Swindell (Membership Officer.) This club's activities included a monthly movie and pizza night and listening to various guest speakers. The Huntingdon County Commissioner Alexa Fultz and former Pennsylvania House of Representatives Majority Leader, Rep. Sam Hayes, Jr. were some of these speakers. This club also attended the annual Pennsylvania College Republican Convention in Harrisburg this past year. By Missy Martz.

Kvasir, Juniata's literary magazine, again survived the academic year to see another brighter literary tomorrow. This year's staff, headed by Editor-In-Chief Sharlee DiMenichi, fused together to form a committed team of literary enthusiasts and tried to inspire the creative initiatives of Juniata's student body. The effort proved successful with an abundance of original works submitted for review. The organization was on target throughout the thanks in part to secretary Conni Covington and her nevertheless anal attempts at keeping the staff in supply of review packets. Kvasir's plight was also aided by advertisement coordinator Courtney Colonna, whose solicitations grabbed the attention of the student body, the majority of whom didn't know Kvasir from Adam.

Occasionally, the magazine met with potential foes. First there was the leak in the office ceiling that threatened Kvasir's perishable history of the written word. Then there was the sickly budget; the last minute scrambling about town for an affordable printer gave the editors significant anguish and plenty of exercise. However, thanks to student contributors, the forever awesome layout staff and other supporters the finished product made it to the stands in April. The event commenced by a poetry reading in the shadow of Cloister during Vengeance Week; students reciting demonstrated grace under the threat of water-balloons and long-distance squirt guns.

This year also marked the return of external ventures. Kvasir hosted a coffee house, a luncheon with visiting poet Robert Pinsky, and Tarot readings and peddling a plethora of wares from stationary to jewelry at Springfest. Sincere thanks to those who submitted to Kvasir. By Rebecca Berdar.

HOSA SHAC

HOSA was the Health Occupations Student of America Club. Any student could become a member of this organization, regardless of his or her P.O.E. The organization was aimed at preparing members for future careers in the health and allied professions. The mission of HOSA was "to enhance the delivery of compassionate, quality health care by providing opportunities for knowledge, skill and leadership development of all health occupations education students, therefore helping the students to meet the needs of the health care industry." This year HOSA organized a Walkathon to raise money for Huntingdon House, a shelter for victims of domestic violence. HOSA organized volunteer work at the Huntingdon Manor Nursing Home. Members also acted as judges at a local competition for high school HOSA members. Speakers from various health, allied health, and administration positions talked to interested students at informal sessions throughout the year. A few members attended a State Conference at Seven Springs Resort in March. In addition, HOSA members worked at events such as the Special Olympics and the Science Olympiad competitions which were held at Juniata College. By Liz Golia.

It was a growing year for SHAC, and with the leadership of Tina Sowards (President), Yelena Kaplan (Vice-President), Connie Peters (Advisor), and all of our members, we were off to a "healthy" start. Their activities for the year included the fruit and peanut sale during the Homecoming Football game, B.R.E.W. Week, Spring Break Mocktails, and general wellness promotions. SHAC also helped to co-sponsor the mock accident in the Fall, when local rescue units helped demonstrate the seriousness of an accident caused by drinking and driving. Congratulations graduates of 1996, cheers and good health. By Ana Fluke.

TRAVELING THE WORLD

SPANISH CLUB

This year the Spanish Club was involved in many activities. With over twenty members, this organization was able to do many diverse activities. Along with Advisor Henry Thurston-Griswold and the International Spanish students, club members learned a lot about Latin American and Spanish cultures.

On a monthly basis, this club sponsored an activity. Many opportunities were given for members to attend Spanish films to help with their comprehension of the language. Some of these films included "El Joven" and "El Marriachi." Also, every Tuesday at noon, any club member was welcomed to the Spanish table located in the Cream Room in Ellis. Here, topics such as Latin American customs and foods were discussed...all in Spanish of course!

In addition, the club also took a day trip to Pittsburgh for a Latin American Festival. About fifteen members attended this all-day affair. Through Latin American dance lessons offered the week prior to the trip, members were able to show off their talents at this carnival. This was also an excellent opportunity for students to sample many Spanish foods.

One final event the Spanish club was involved with was Springfest. Here, the club set up a Sangria Temple where they served nonalcoholic Spanish drinks. The profit earned from this event went toward the planning of next year's activities. An end-of-the-year social concluded the clubs gathering for this year. Held in South lounge, members gathered for their final Spanish lunch and celebration. The lunch concluded with a traditional breaking of a pinata. HABITAT FOR HUMANITY:

Over Spring Break, many members of Habitat for Humanity traveled down to South Carolina to build a house in one weeks time. The club had a great time constructing the home, camping on the beach, and driving many long hours in the van!

WHAT A MESS

During the Springfest activities, D.J. Hoffman gets a pie in the face. Hoffman was voted by the students to receive this tasty treat!

CAMPUS MINISTRY

Campus Ministry was a very active organization at Juniata. Through various programs and activities, Campus Ministry sought to create a community of faith which reflected a commitment to both God and humanity. Activities this year included: weekly worship, coffeehouses, meal for C.R.O.P., and mission work.

In addition, this organization provided an atmosphere and place for students to share concerns, pray, study the Bible, and discuss big issues of the present day. Through special lectures, Discipleship Groups, and weekend retreats, club members became very close in spirit and mind with one another.

Along with the Campus Ministry Board, other organizations include: The Jewish Student Association, Brethren Student Fellowship, Juniata College Catholic Council, and Fellowship of Christian Athletes. By Kelly Morton.

...the end

*Although the end of another year has passed and the Seniors have moved on, the memories will always “survive the times.”
—by Kelly Morton*

As the year passed, it was evident that people and things on our campus changed and developed. All of our long-loved traditions continued, but with added twists and dimensions. For example, The Presidential Ball was held at the Elks Lodge rather than in Baker Refractory; and at May Day, men were now invited to the breakfast to celebrate womans' accomplishments. What was most important, however, was that these events, our dedicated professors, and continued Juniata spirit “survived the times.” For 150 years, our college has existed... that fact alone represents the great survival of Juniata and its surroundings. Unfortunately though, not all of our classmates and beloved events at Juniata continued throughout the year. The Indian mascot was replaced by a wild and crazy Eagle, and five of our athletic teams were missing from the competitions this year. These facts and others, failed to survive. But our memories and stories associated with these things will always remain. All of us who attended Juniata College throughout the 1995-1996 school year, its 150th Anniversary, know of these events and people. Our presence is remembered and recorded throughout this book. These memories, like Madrigal and Mountain Day, will always “survive the times!”

The final exchange

Before leaving the Juniata campus, friends Kristina Konig and Heather Davis exchange addresses. The friendships and memories made throughout the semesters were ones which will “survive the times.”

On behalf of Eileen and myself, we have many thanks to those who contributed to this year's book, "Surviving the Times." Primarily, to our dedicated staff members, we thank you. Special recognition is deserved to Kate Wolling and Rose Reagan who often when above and beyond their expected duties. Without our staff, this book would have never occurred! Thank you.

Additional thanks goes out to our Josten representative, Bev Harader. Thank you for your advice, guidance, and never ending harassment!!! Just kidding. We appreciate all you do for our "little college." Also, we would like to thank all those working at Davor Photography, especially Abe Orlick and Jim Rainy. Your prompt help and service does not go unrecognized.

Finally we would all like to thank our trusty advisor Donna Weimer. We know you are one of the busiest people at Juniata, but you still seem to fit us in your schedule. Thank you. Also, thanks to all those Juniata students who contributed to this year's book. We always need your assistance in writing stories and taking pictures. This book was produced specifically for you.

Personally, as I sit year finishing this book I am reminded of the past year and all our small staff has gone through. I want to thank Eileen and Shelly for giving me the opportunity to be a Co-Editor this year. Beyond the computer skills, photography lessons, and writing practice, I learned much more within our small office walls thanks to you two. Lessons like these can never be taught in any classroom or book. Thank you.

As for next year, we all hope to continue improving Juniata's yearbook to help better preserve the passing years. We are looking forward to the exciting changes that will be occurring with the next year. Hope y'all are a part of it!

Forever Friends

With smiles on their faces and flowers in their hands, friends Dana Hess and Brigit Zeamer proudly stand as 1996 Juniata College graduates. These two, like many roommates, classmates, and teammates, will remember their years at Juniata for a lifetime.

Saying Goodbye

Before parting their separate ways, members of the graduating class come together one more time for a group photo. These friendships will hopefully "survive the times" like many of Juniata's traditions.
